PREFACE

The thanks of the Lincoln Record Society must again be offered to the Dean and Chapter of Lincoln for the unrestricted access to their archives, without which it would have been impossible to produce the present volume. There are other cathedral churches where the historical student receives similar encouragement and help, but unhappily there still remain some in which the obstacles placed in the way of historical research are almost insuperable.

The Dean and Chapter have again contributed to the cost of the work.

Of the four hundred and thirty-three documents¹ in this volume, only ten have been previously printed verbatim. Sixty-six of the documents relate to Lincolnshire, while the numbers of those concerned with other counties are :

The present volume has not been supplied with an introduction because the intention is that an epilogue written by Professor F. M. Stenton shall be printed in the last volume of the series. Here therefore it is sufficient to point to some of the principal contents of the present instalment. A short series of charters (nos. 658–669), relating to the church of Haddenham in Buckinghamshire and its chapelries of Kingsey and Cuddington, tells how the chapel of Kingsey struggled to obtain independence of the mother church, and how both chapels at length gained the status of vicarages. Amongst the documents is a letter from an official to the arch-deacon of Buckingham, his master, to which he adds a postscript to the effect that R. de Somerton, his lord's adversary, has departed to the fates, concluding, as it seems, with the wish, 'So let all our enemies perish'. A longer series (nos. 673-769), preserved in the cartulary known as Carte Decani, is concerned mainly with the property of the deanery of Lincoln in the parishes of Ashbourne, Chesterfield, Derby, and Wirksworth. The dean was rector of the churches of those parishes with the exception of All Saints, Derby, and some of the charters relating to their numerous chapelries illustrate the rights claimed by mother churches. Fourteen of the documents in the same cartulary (nos. 770-783) provide for the endowment of the Morning Mass at Lincoln. Four original charters (nos. 792-795) have to do with the foundation of the Augustinian hospital of Little Wymondley in Hertfordshire by Richard de Argentein.

Another long series (nos. 800-865) relates to Great Paxton in Huntingdonshire with its hamlets of Little Paxton, and Toseland, and its appendage of Agden. The church of Great Paxton was given circa 1124 (no. 800) by king David I of Scotland, who was also earl of Huntingdon, to Holyrood Abbey at Edinburgh, and the king's charter indicates that there was in the church a small community of clerks under the rule of a prior. The little priory, which is unknown apart from these charters, became a cell of Holyrood. In 1232, the abbot and convent sold the church to bishop Hugh of Wells in return for a pension of twenty marks (nos. 825, 826); and, in 1273, bishop Gravesend appropriated it to the dean and chapter (no. 833), ordaining a vicarage in the following year (no. 835). Finally, the dean and chapter redeemed the pension by a payment to the abbey of a sum of two hundred marks, and the continuance to a certain clerk of a pension of one hundred shillings for his life, though it was by no means certain that he had not already gone the way of all flesh (nos. 837-841). The letters in which the bargain was struck are interesting. The abbot and convent, it appears, had found it difficult to collect their pension, and they reproached the dean and chapter with having sent back their messenger with empty hands, 'not without heavy expense to us and, as we think, divine displeasure, solely for the supposed reason that we through weariness hold the said pension as lost'

(no. 838). They would not, they point out, sell a yearly rent of twenty marks in their own parts for two hundred marks, but they have thought good, on account of the dangers of the roads, and the distance of the place, to assent to the sale of the pension for the said sum (no. 837). In one of their letters (no. 839) the dean and chapter ask the abbot and convent to send them the muniments which they have concerning the pension; and upon the copy which they kept of this letter there is the endorsement, 'Memorandum that immediately after our messenger had ridden towards Scotland with this letter all those instruments which we were asking for were found here in our northern treasury at Lincoln'.

The Paxton documents are important as including six early charters of Scottish kings or princes. There is also a bond, dated 1219, of Master Peter, rector of Paxton, promising to pay to the abbot and convent of Holyrood thirteen marks, three shillings, and four pence, pledging as security for the debt his Bible and law books (no. 821). Peter's collection of books is of peculiar interest as the library of an individual, and suggests that at the beginning of the thirteenth century a knowledge of Roman law was more widely spread in England than would be gathered from the few references to this literature which have come down to us from this period. No. 855 is a Hebrew starr, for the transcription and full annotation of which I am indebted to the kindness of Mr Herbert Loewe, Reader in Rabbinics in the University of Cambridge. A grant of land in Little Paxton (no. 863) is remarkable as being made for the yearly render, of which no other instance has been found, of one penny to the roll of Jerusalem on the Sunday after the Exaltation of the Cross, a payment, seemingly, towards the expenses of the last Crusade.

The bishop's estate in Leicester and Knighton and the estate of the prebend of Saint Margaret, Leicester, are represented by twenty-two charters (nos. 871-892). In Nottinghamshire (nos. 902-904) the Warwickshire family of Hardreshull in the twelfth century received a royal grant of land in Clayworth for the service of a mew'd sparrow-hawk, which in one document is defined as a hawk for hunting teal, thus adding another serjeanty to those mentioned by Dr Round in The King's Serjeants and Officers of State. In no. 905 Robert son of Gilbert of Meering releases to bishop Gravesend his right in two islands near Girton and a fishery, reserving to himself the right to catch fish for his own dinner. An interesting charter (no. 920) records the foundation by bishop Alexander of the hospital of Saint Leonard at Newark.

A composition between the dean and chapter and the mayor and community of the city of Lincoln (no. 963), which was consummated with kisses between the treasurer and the mayor, records some interesting customs. In the latter part of the volume, which is concerned mainly with the appropriations of churches to the chapter, and the ordination of vicarages, there is a series of documents (nos. 968-998), relating to the churches of Orston and Edwinstowe with their chapels; and here again the rights of the mother churches are seen to be jealously safeguarded. The churches were appropriated to the Common of the dean and chapter in 1192-95 (nos. 977, 978), but before that time they belonged to a prebend, and the dean had a temporary interest in them. A charter in this series (no. 990), dated 1186-89, tells how Richard Fitz-Neal, on his canonical election to the deanery, provided a house for the dean in the cemetery of the church of Lincoln, when he discovered that the dean had no dwelling-house of his own. Two of the documents are grants by the community of the village of Wellow (nos. 973, 974) sealed with the seal of the community, a remarkable instance of such a community being in possession of a seal.

Fourteen documents (nos. 1018-1031) relate to Castle Bytham, Holywell, and Little Bytham. The church of Castle Bytham was collegiate, and each of the three places provided a prebend in it. The first charter carries its history back to the eleventh century, and it is probable that it was an Old English foundation and, if so, parallel to numerous little collegiate foundations in the West Midlands.

In the early grants of churches¹ the formulas are generally so indefinite that it is difficult to decide what it is that is granted, whether it is the church by way of appropriation, or the advowson of the church, or, if the grant is in favour of a clerk (e.g. nos. 655, 812), whether it is in the nature of a presentation in order that he may be instituted in it, or a confirmation by a new patron of the clerk's possession of it.

There now remain to be printed in the other volumes of this work the charters of places in the several wapentakes of Lincolnshire and of the several parishes in the city of Lincoln.

In conclusion, I must gratefully acknowledge the help that I have received from various scholars. Professor F. M. Stenton, F.B.A., has looked through most of the volume, giving advice about some of the dates, and contributing material for notes on a few of the more important charters. Mrs Stenton has read some of the proofs. Professor Walther Holtzmann, Professor of History in the University of Halle, has given advice about the papal documents. Dr Irene J. Churchill has helped to date the Kent charters, and Mr Charles Clay those of the Honour of Richmond. Mr Charles Johnson, the present-day representative of Du Cange, has given the benefit of his knowledge in the interpretation of some unusual words; and he has contributed some of the corrections for volume II.¹ Professor A. Hamilton Thompson, F.B.A., has allowed me to draw upon his wide knowledge of the Middle Ages. To Mr George S. Gibbons I am again deeply indebted for patiently reading the first proofs and also the revises with such care that I may claim that all unusual forms of words and departures from grammatical orthodoxy have been noticed and verified. These are so numerous that it has been decided generally to omit sic. Miss Kathleen Major, B.LITT., Librarian of Saint Hilda's College, Oxford, and Assistant Editor of the Lincoln Record Society, has read the proofs of the indexes, and made many valuable suggestions. My niece, Barbara Wilson, has helped in the tedious work of checking the entries in the indexes. Miss Florence E. Thurlby, my secretary, has given unfailing and enthusiastic help in every part of the work, and especially in arranging and checking the indexes. The Hereford Times Company have lightened my labours by the care which they have bestowed upon the proofs.

NOTES

THE REGISTRUM ANTIQUISSIMUM has supplied the plan or framework of this volume, that is, that cartulary is printed consecutively, while charters which are not included in it are interpolated in the appropriate places. Each charter from the REGISTRUM ANTIQUISSIMUM is distinguished by having its serial number in the cartulary printed in Old English type in the middle of the page. The interpolated charters are marked by the words ADD. CHART. (Additional Charter) or, if they come from a source outside the muniment room of the Dean and Chapter, by the words ADD. (EXTRAN.) CHART. (Additional Extraneous Charter), printed in the middle of the page. If there is an original charter the document has been printed from that text, and if there is no original document the text of the REGISTRUM ANTIQUISSIMUM has been preferred to any other. To the text from which a document is printed is assigned the first place under the head of 'Texts'; and important various readings in the other texts are given under 'Var. R.'

The text of these volumes attempts to reproduce the documents letter for letter, with all marks of accentuation. Endorsements of original charters earlier than the seventeenth century have been printed. The abbreviated Latin forms have been extended, and where there might be any doubt in regard to the form intended italics have been used. The compendium which frequently occurs at the end of a name has been retained unless it has seemed likely that an extension was contemplated, and for such extensions italics have been used. Since the use of capitals in medieval texts is arbitrary, the modern use has been adopted, a course which may serve as a guide to the sense, and also help the student more readily to catch sight of names. The punctuation of the documents, though sometimes capricious, has been adhered to. Since print can never be a perfect substitute for an original document, facsimiles of some of the most important original charters are provided.

The historical year, beginning 1st January, is used throughout this edition, except that in the texts of documents the original has been adhered to.

Slit for seal-tag. Size : $6\frac{1}{4} \times 3\frac{7}{8}$ inches.

Text : MS—Orig. dij/67/2/8.

Var. R. : ¹ cancelled.

Notes : The chapel referred to is the prebendal chapel of Herne at Bedford (see above, vol. i, 10). In 1792, the chapel was 'let as a storehouse and a small garden near the school in Bedford' (Lincoln Diocesan Registry, Speculum, no. III).

For the date it may be noted that John Culebere, Thomas Halyday, John Calt, and Abel ad Aquam appear as witnesses in an inquisition dated 1291 (G. H. Fowler in Curatory of Newenham, Harl. MS. 3565, f. 48). A certain Walter of Torksey was master of St Leonard's hospital, Bedford, 1288–1294.

The prebend to which the chapel belonged was that of Bedford Major, or as it is called in the fourteenth century, the prebend of Bedford with the portions of Kyrkeby and Kildesby (Reg., xiii, ff. 335d, 338). The latter place is Kilsby, in Northamptonshire, where the prebendary of Bedford Major was entitled, with some trifling exceptions, to the great tithes of eight and a quarter yardlands of freehold, called the Hall yardlands; in lieu of which the commissioners of enclosure awarded 35 acres, 1 rood, 17 poles to the lessee of the prebendary, who sold about two and a half acres to defray his share of the expenses of the act (Baker, County of Northampton i, 402). Kyrkeby must be identified with Kirkby Underwood, in Lincolnshire. In the Valuation of Norwich (ed. Lunt, p. 246), in 1254, a mediety of the church of Kirkby Underwood is taxed at five marks, and it is stated that the other part belongs to a prebend of Lincoln. In the taxation of Pope Nicholas (p. 61), circa 1291, the rector's portion is taxed at £5 6s. 8d., 'besides the other part taxed among the prebends'. The rector's mediety was given to Sempringham priory, circa 1160, by William de Reines, and confirmed by William de Albenni (The Genealogist, n.s., xvi, 33-4, 223). The priory presented to the mediety until soon after 1300, after which the bishop was patron until 1493 (Reg. xxii, f. 155d). In 1511, the bishop became patron of the whole church (Reg. xxiii, f. 143). In the enclosure award of Rippingale and Kirkby Underwood, 19 April, 1806, all the great and small tithes in Kirkby are stated to belong to the rector of the parish.

ADD. CHART.

644. Grant by bishop Hugh [II] with the assent of W[illiam de Thornaco] the dean and the chapter to brother Thorald, master of the hospital of poor persons in the parish of Hockliffe, and his successors, and with the consent of Thomas, chaplain of the rector of Hockliffe, to whom the patronage belongs, that they may have a chantry in their chapel, and burial at it for themselves only, saving the right of the neighbouring churches and of the mother church of Hockliffe. At Lincoln. (2 April, 1230.)

Note : The alien priory of Grove was situate at Grovebury in the parish of Leighton Buzzard on the border of Bedfordshire. Just over the county boundary lies the parish of Grove in Buckinghamshire. Later, probably to avoid the risk of confusion, the house was called Grovebury, or, occasionally, the priory of Leighton Buzzard. Henry II, about 1164, gave the manor to the nuns of Fontevrault abbey in Normandy who founded there a cell of foreign monks, the prior of which was, for the most part, procurator general for the concerns of the abbey in England (Tanner, Noticia Monastica, ed. 1787, Bedfordshire, no. X ; R. Richmond, Leighton Buzzard and its Hamlets, pp. 16, 17). The chapel at Grovebury was dedicated to Saint John, and the site is still called Chapel Ground, and some pieces of sandstone foundations were uncovered in 1920 (Richmond, op. cit., pp. 17, 18).

Heath is a hamlet of Leighton Buzzard.

ADD. CHART.

653. Award of the bishop of Salisbury and the abbots of Westminster and Waltham with regard to divers matters that were in dispute between bishop Hugh II and the abbot and convent of Saint Albans : A vicarage shall be ordained in the church of Luton, and the vicar shall have all the offerings and all the small tithes of the church and its chapels, with a competent dwelling-house, and shall maintain the ordinary parochial charges. The successive vicars shall be instituted by the bishop on the presentation of the abbot and convent. The bishop shall have full jurisdiction in the church of Luton, and the custody of the vicarage when it is vacant. The status of the bishop with regard to churches appropriated to the abbot and monks, and the assigning of vicarages, and custody of both, shall remain as it was. Priors for the cells shall be presented by the abbot and convent to receive from the bishop administration of the spiritualities. The abbot shall have the cure of the souls of the monks dwelling at his cells throughout the diocese of Lincoln ; and the power of placing monks in them, and of correcting them. It shall be lawful also for the abbot to recall the priors who have been admitted. In chapter at Saint Albans. 1219.

Notes : The charter is dated by bishop Walter's episcopate.

The church of Potton was granted to St Andrew's priory, Northampton, circa 1124, by David I, king of Scots (Lawrie, Early Scottish Charters, 50) ; and the grant was confirmed by Simon of St Liz II, earl of Northampton, who held the earldom of Huntingdon, 1148-1153 (B.M., Reg. MS 11, B ix, f. 7d). In 1181-1184 the priory, at the request of Henry II, granted the church, for five marks a year, to Ralf [Foliot], archdeacon of Hereford (ibid., f. 22). From these particulars, for which the writer is indebted to Dr G. H. Fowler, it might seem that there was no room in the history of the church for the present text ; but the genuineness of the document need not be questioned ; for it may be accounted for by the political circumstances of the period. King William the Lion who, with his brother David, had joined the party of Henry the young king, was defeated and taken prisoner by king Henry II on 12 July, 1174, and deprived of the earldom of Huntingdon. The king thereupon granted the earldom to Simon St Liz III, who was one of his supporters, and Simon held it until his death in June, 1184. In 1185, king William obtained a regrant of the earldom, but immediately resigned it to his brother David, who held it until his death on 17 June, 1219. Philip of Kyme, the grantor of the present charter, was the second son of the Philip of Kyme, who was one of earl Simon's knights in 1166 (Red Book of the Exchequer i, 381-3), and like Simon belonged to king Henry's party. In 1174 the Scottish party was discredited; and it would seem that Philip of Kyme, the grantor, chose to ignore king David I's gift of the church of Potton to St Andrew's priory, even though the gift was confirmed by Simon St Liz II: and professed to grant it in mediety to the church of Lincoln and the priory which his father had founded at South Kyme. Philip's grant, however, never became effective. Simon St Liz III, while he was earl of Huntingdon 1174-1184, granted the church to St Andrew's priory, Simon of Kyme (Kim) and William his brother, who were brothers of Philip the grantor, being witnesses (B.M., Reg. MS 11 B ix. f. 6d.). When David, brother of the king of Scots, obtained the earldom of Huntingdon in 1185, he asserted a right to dispose of the church by the grant which he made to Peter of Paxton (no. 655, below). He also confirmed the church to master Thomas his clerk, to hold for his life of the priory of St. Andrew (B.M., Reg. MS 11, B ix, f. 11). The controversy about the church was finally settled on 22 May, 1201, by a composition which left the priory in undisputed possession of it. A Paxton charter (no. 812 below) shews a similar abortive attempt to ignore the grant of a church to a religious house.

Notes: For the circumstances of this grant see Note to no. 654, above. The date is probably soon after David became earl of Huntingdon.

The person or persons who were responsible for the reading in R of Paxtun for Pottun, and for the endorsement on the original, both circa 1330, were evidently misled by the fact that Peter of Paxton was rector of Paxton circa 1180-1233. The text is preserved amongst the Paxton charters, and the final concord referred to in the endorsement is no. 823, below.

Note : Stephen was chancellor approximately 1189–1192. The present document reveals an attempt to usurp the status of a parish church for the chapel of Kingsey, at the expense of the church of Haddenham of which it was a chapel. No. 665, below shews that Simon was subsequently compelled to acknowledge the right of the mother church of Haddenham. For an earlier usurpation see vol. ii, 7–9, above.

659. Transcript, made about 1228, of two charters :

(i) Institution by bishop Hugh [II] of Ralf to the vicarage of Haddenham with the chapel of Cuddington, and ordination of the vicarage : The vicarage consists of the altarage of the church of Haddenham and the chapel of Cuddington, except the small tithes of the demesne of the monks of Rochester, and of a virgate and the manse belonging to it, in Cuddington, and of the tithe of sheaves of three hides of the fee of Richard the younger in the village of Haddenham, and of the manse of William sometime chaplain of the village. The bishop, however, has retained for the use of the monks the third sheaf of the tithes of Cuddington which was formerly allotted to the vicar. The vicar is bound to minister personally in the church of Haddenham, and to find a chaplain to minister in the chapel of Cuddington, and to bear the other charges of the church, both episcopal and archidiaconal, excepting bishop's aid if it shall fall, for which he shall answer according to his proportion, and excepting the reparation of the choir for which the sacrist of Rochester shall be liable. At Eynsham. 18 August, 1218.

(ii) Confirmation by Richard, archbishop of Canterbury and papal legate, acting under apostolic authority, of a composition between the monks of Rochester and Roger the priest about the chapel of Eye : Roger has confessed that the chapel belongs to the mother church of Haddenham, and has resigned it into the hands of the archbishop ; and the monks have granted that he shall hold it of them for his life, paying them a yearly pension of twenty shillings. Dated 1174, from which time 55 years have elapsed.

Note : The date is before 1231, when a vicarage of Kingsey was ordained, and the bishop instituted Simon de Wotesdon' to it on the presentation of brother William the sacrist, proctor of the prior and convent of Rochester (L.R.S. vi, 84).

ADD. CHART.

662. Letter of master P. the official of the archdeacon of Buckingham to bishop Hugh [II] : At the bishop's command he has made an inquisition at Kingsey, and has ascertained that the altarage with one virgate and a competent manse and croft belonging to the chapel of the village of Kingsey are worth six marks in common years. The sacrist [of Rochester] has granted the tithes of the hay of all the parishioners of Haddenham and Cuddington, which are worth two marks. The tithes also of hay of the village of Kingsey are worth in common years thirty-eight shillings ; nevertheless last year the sacrist received in counted money by redemption of the tithes of hay forty shillings and eightpence halfpenny. Note : P. seems to have become archdeacon's official in 1228 (L.R.S. vi, p. 74). The sacrist, in making the grant, was acting in obedience to the bishop's injunction that he should augment the income of Haddenham and its chapels (see no. 663, below). The negotiations ended in the ordination of a separate vicarage of Kingsey.

663. Letter, probably by the same writer as before, to sir W[illiam] of Winchcombe. The writer gives a similar account of the value of the tithes of hay granted by the sacrist, and adds that the sacrist told him that, when he was convented before the bishop at London, he understated the value of the tithes of hay at Kingsey, and this the writer makes known to Winchcombe and the bishop, and he informs Winchcombe that the bishop has intimated to him that Winchcombe is to help the sacrist. In a postscript he says that R. de Sumerton, his master's adversary, is dead, and expresses a wish that a similar fate may overtake all their other enemies. (Circa 1229.)

664. Letter of M[atthew of Stratton], archdeacon of Buckingham, informing bishop Hugh [II] of the findings of an inquisition made in the chapter [of Wendover] about the value of the vicarage of Haddenham : The vicarage is worth fifteen marks and a virgate and meadow with the altarage and with the tithes of hay, which the sacrist, as the monks' proctor at Kingsey, added at London before the bishop. 665. Letter of M[atthew de Stratton], archdeacon of Buckingham, informing bishop H[ugh II] of the findings of an inquisition made in full synod at Aylesbury about the church of Haddenham : The monks of Rochester have possessed the church of Haddenham with its chapels of Cuddington and Kingsey, from a time beyond the memory of man, of the gift of William Rufus. The monks exhibited a papal confirmation, dated 1154, of king William's gift of the manor of Haddenham with its church and chapels for the purpose of their victuals. The chapel of Kingsey was for some time seized and held by a certain Simon ; but he, on being convented before the judges delegate, restored possession of it to the monks. The bishop ordained a vicarage in the church of Haddenham, as he may see by looking at his own charter. The vicarage is now worth twelve marks. (Circa 1229.)

ADD. CHART.

670. Final concord made between bishop Hugh II and Oliver de Aencurt concerning the manor of Wooburn : Oliver has acknowledged the manor to be the right of the bishop ; and moreover has quitclaimed to him ten pounds' worth of land therein, namely, the third part of his own demesne in the village ; and the homage of Robert son of Simon in respect of two and a half virgates, namely, six shillings a year and foreign service and certain villeins and their services. For this the bishop has granted the rest of the manor to Oliver, to hold by the service of two knights, in which shall be reckoned the foreign service which belongs to the said land of Robert son of Simon ; and Oliver has released to the bishop his right in the advowson of the church of the manor, and in the manors of Lyddington [co. Rutland], Holme [Spinney], and Corby [co. Lincoln], in the land of Hungate [in Lincoln], and in three bovates in Cotham, and in the lands lying in the fields of Cotham which belong to Balderton [co. Nottingham]. Oliver's wife Nicholaa was present in court and has released her right of dower in the premises. At Westminster. 20 January, 1222.

ADD. CHART.

680. Final concord made between Henry [Lexington] dean of Lincoln, parson of Ashbourne, querent, and Richard of Mappleton, Henry of Mappleton, and William of Ashbourne and their respective wives, deforciant, concerning four and a half tofts and one acre of meadow in Ashbourne, on a plea of utrum, namely, whether the premises are free alms belonging to the parson's church or the lay fee of the deforcians. The deforcians have quitclaimed the premises to the parson and his church, except two and a half tofts and meadow which the parson has granted to them and the heirs of the wives: and the deforcians have granted that all who dwell in the tenements shall use the parson's mill for their corn and malt, and do suit at his court. 764. Assignment by Raymund Fabri, canon of the church of Saint Radegund of Poitiers, proctor and locum tenens of Raymund, cardinal deacon of the Roman church, and dean of Lincoln, and, as dean, rector of Wirksworth : Whereas Robert de Bradber', vicar of Wirksworth, has complained to me that he has not within the fee and liberty of the church of Wirksworth a habitation where he may lay his head ; and on this account being thus compelled to provide for himself a hostel in the temporal jurisdiction too far from the church, he, through the temporal bailiffs and other laymen who are hostile to clerks in the town, suffers grave loss to the prejudice of ecclesiastical liberty and of the performance of the ministrations enjoined upon him: I, after deliberation with the chapter, have by the authority of the dean, my lord, assigned to the said vicar and his successors that plot which my lord has as dean within the fee and liberty of the church of Wirksworth; rendering therefor to the dean four shillings a year; provided that the vicar and his successors shall construct and maintain houses and buildings for their personal residence. At Derby. 16 March, 1307.

Note : It is not known that the church of Lincoln ever had any interest in Alton. A fourteenth century endorsement, on no. 787, below, has, 'Contingunt Stok' but 'Stok' has been struck out. No reliance should be placed on the eighteenth century endorsement which says that the place is Stoke in Lincolnshire. The other endorsement which states that Roger of Turville, the grantee, was formerly clerk of the common of the church of Lincoln, circa 1260, perhaps accounts for this series of charters being found at Lincoln, though they may have concerned Roger's private estate. Cp. vol. ii, nos. 398, 400, above; and no. 830, below.

The handwriting of this series of charters points to a date circa 1220–1240. Maurice of Turville and Amice his wife are found in 1222 (V.C.H., Hampshire iii, 250). Adam de Gurdon [of Selborne], who is a witness in nos. 785, 786, and 787, is the second of three successive persons of that name. He was already dead on 12 August, 1231, and his son, Adam III, was still a minor in 1235 (The Genealogist, n.s., xi, 10). Gilbert de Stapelbrigge was under sheriff of Hampshire (see no. 789, below) from Michaelmas, 1225—29 July, 1228.

Text : MS—D76.

Notes : The text occurs in Carte Decani in the midst of a long series of documents relating to Ashbourne, in Derbyshire ; but its inclusion amongst the charters of that place was a perhaps pardonable mistake of the compiler of Carte Decani. It is plain that Esseburn' must be identified with Easebourne in the western part of Sussex, and Hambrisham with Ambersham which formerly was a detached portion of the parish of Steep, in Hampshire. Ambersham, which a century ago was transferred from Hampshire to Sussex, is divided into two parts, consisting of North Ambersham which is now in the ecclesiastical parish of Fernhurst, and South Ambersham now in that of Easebourne. Ambersham was granted by Henry II to the bishop of Winchester, from whom it was held for four centuries by the family of Taillard (V.C.H., Hampshire iii, 78). This fact suggests that the scribe of the cartulary, misreading the name Tailard, wrote Taisard. No connection of the Albin family with Ambersham has been discovered : though the family had estates in the immediate neighbourhood. The date of Daniel vicar of Whippingham, in the Isle of Wight, is unknown. Richard of Mukingistun' took his name from a place, now extinct, which is associated with Limerstone, in the parish of Brixton, in the Isle of Wight. This name, it may be observed, still survives in Muggleton Lane near Limerstone farm.

No explanation can be offered of the presence at Lincoln of the present text, except that the suggestion may be made, for what it is worth, that since Ambersham is not far from Alton, the document may have found its way to Lincoln in company with the Alton charters (see no. 785, note, above). For other notices of M[archisius] de Aubigny, see nos. 872 and 912, below. The date is probably about the same as that of no. 872, below.

RICARDI : DE : ARGÉN

Size : 6½ x 5½ inches.

Text : MS—Orig. Dij/88/3/52.

Notes : The shield on the obverse of the seal has the canting arms of the Argentein family : Gules, three covered cups, argent. In 1212, Richard de Argentun held [Great] Wymondley of the king by serjeanty, namely, by the service of serving with one silver cup at the king's coronation (Book of Fees i, 124) ; or, as it is stated in Richard's inquisition post mortem, in 1247, by the service of serving with a cup at the king's chief feasts when directed by the king's steward (Calendar of Inquisitions, Henry III, no. 93). The incomplete legend on the obverse of the seal evidently relates to this service. Mr Mill Stephenson, F.S.A., who kindly investigated the matter, informs the Editor that no other impression of the seal is known.

The church of Little Wymondley formed part of the endowment of the hospital in that place (Liber Antiquus Hugonis Wells, p. 28); and the approximate date of the foundation of the hospital is indicated by a mandate of bishop Hugh II, 2 March, 1219, enjoining R. archdeacon of Huntingdon, on the resignation of master William de Argentein, the parson, and of Thomas, the vicar, of the church of Little Wymondley, to induct the master of the hospital into full possession of the said church, which was previously confirmed to him by the authority of the bishop and the dean and chapter of Lincoln (L.R.S. iii, 141). Richard de Argentein joined the crusade of 1218 (Round, The King's Serjeants, p. 266); and it may be presumed that he founded the hospital shortly before he left England.

ADD. CHART.

793. Notification by the same of another grant of the same advowson to the chapter of Lincoln. The rule of Saint Augustine shall be observed, and the number of the brethren or canons to be appointed by the master shall not exceed seven, unless the revenues happen to be increased. (Circa 1218.)

798. The grant by king John to William of Ely, his treasurer, of a fair and weekly market at his prebend of Leighton, which is printed in vol. i. pp. 128–9, above, appears to refer to the prebend of Leighton [Bromswold] manor, in Huntingdonshire, and not Leighton Buzzard in Bedfordshire, as is there stated. This is proved by a royal inspeximus and confirmation, dated 14 March, 1384 (see vol. i. p. lxii, above, Inspeximus ix; C.C.R. v, 294), in favour of Thomas Southam, prebendary of Leighton Manor, of the following :

1. No. 799, below.
2. A182, printed in vol. i. p. 56, above.
3. A163, printed ibid., pp. 128–9.

During the vacancy of the see of Lincoln, king John, in 1207, granted the prebend of Leighton' to William of Ely, his treasurer (Rot. Litt. Pat., p. 73b). Le Neve, Fasti, makes William to be prebendary of both Leighton Buzzard and Leighton Manor.

ADD. (EXTRAN.) CHART.

799. Royal grant to John de Newenham, king's clerk, prebendary of Leghton Manor in the church of Lincoln' that he may impark his wood of Salne with the pasture adjoining in the manor of Leghton, which wood and pasture are without the metes of the forest, and hold the said park to him and his successors and also that the said John and his successors shall have free warren in all the demesne lands belonging to the prebend. PAXTON

THE CHURCH OF GREAT PAXTON

ADD. CHART.

800. Charter of David [I] king of Scots. The king has given to the church of the Holy Trinity, [Great] Paxton, seven virgates in Great Paxton, namely two virgates of his demesne and five virgates of the lands of the villeins with the villeins themselves; and his right of cutting wood, with his spinney in Little Paxton, in exchange for the whole land which the church had in Little Paxton and in Agden, namely nine virgates. The king has given to the church his demesne court in Great Paxton. And this exchange he has made at the request of Orgar the priest and Osbert the king's chaplain. He has granted to the same church the tithe of the whole of his demesne and of all his men of Great Paxton and Little Paxton, and of Toseland, and of Agden, and the tithe of his pannage; and his fishery; and the demesne pigs of the church, and demesne beasts, and demesne sheep and goats shall have pasture freely with the king's demesne [animals]. Further the king has given to the church in augmentation a croft on one side of the church, and the tithe of the mills of Paxton, and wood for burning in the offices of the church. The king also confirms whatever his men have given in alms to the church. Finally, for the souls of himself and Maud his wife and others he commands that the church shall hold all that is aforewritten in alms as freely as any church holds most freely. And the prior and clerks of the church shall serve the church canonically in religion. And when the prior dies, if a religious prior can be found from amongst the clerks of the church, let him be appointed; but if not, let one be sought elsewhere by the advice of the king and the bishop. All these customs and franchises which the king has granted to the church of Paxton he grants to the church of Kempston [co. Bedford].

Texts: MS—R296. Pd—Scottish Historical Review xiv, 370–2, ed. Doris M. Parsons.

Notes: The date lies between 25 April, 1124, when David I succeeded to the throne of Scotland, and 1128, when Ailwin the chaplain, who appears as one of the witnesses, became the first abbot of Holyrood, the house of Augustinian canons which David founded at Edinburgh. Miss Doris M. Parsons (now Mrs. Stenton), who printed this text in the Scottish Historical Review (xiv, 370), has a useful note about the witnesses, shewing that their names do not conflict with this date (ibid., p. 370).

The first two charters of the Paxton series indicate that there was in the parish church a small community of clerks under the rule of a prior; and the charter of archbishop Theobald speaks of Osbert, who was evidently the head of the community, as a canon regular. This little priory, which is unknown apart from these charters, was a cell of Holyrood abbey. About 1161, Malcolm IV granted the church of [Great] Paxton to Holyrood (no. 804, below), in whose possession it remained until 1232, when the abbot and convent sold it to bishop Hugh II of Lincoln in return for a yearly pension of twenty marks (nos. 825 and 826, below). Finally, as related in an interesting series of letters and charters (nos. 837 to 844, below), the abbot and convent sold this pension to the dean and chapter of Lincoln for two hundred marks.

In 1086 Paxton (Pachstone) formed part of the fee of the countess Judith, from whom it passed to David I of Scotland on his marriage with Judith's daughter, Maud. It was an important place, for with its three berewicks it was assessed at twenty-five hides, and there was land for forty-one plough-teams. There were also a church and a priest; and one hide of the land belonged to the church (Domesday Book i. 207a, col. 1). In 1124-1128, as the present text shews, the church held nine virgates in Little Paxton and Agden alone.

Accadena is represented by the existing Agden Green in Great Staughton. The place seems formerly to have been of considerable extent, for a seventeenth century map (now in the possession of the vicar of Great Staughton) marks the farms of Big Agden and Little Agden to the north-east and north-west respectively of Agden Green, and also Agden mill, in Graham, about half way between West Perry and Buckden. The mesne lord of the manor of Beechampstead (now extinct), in the north-western part of Great Staughton, which belonged to the honor of Huntingdon (Farrer, Honors ii. 356, 403), had a right in the wood of Akeden' (Rotuli Hundredorum ii. 667a, 667b). In 1240-1, Reginald [of Bath], parson of Paxton, claimed the right of estover in the wood of Akeden' (G. J. Turner, Feet of Fines, Huntingdon, p. 18; cp. p. 22).

The church of Great Paxton was richly endowed. In 1254 the valuation of the rectory was forty marks (W. E. Lunt, The Valuation of Norwich, p. 294). In 1291 the church with its chapels, including the portion in Scotton', and excluding the untitheable portion of the vicars of Lincoln was £26 13s. 4d. = 40 marks (Taxatio . . . P. Nicholai IV, p. 36b). The vicar's portion was twenty marks a year (see vol. ii, 58, 91-4, above). Scotton' is Great Staughton, and the portion there may be connected with Accadena. For the valuation of the vicarage of Great Paxton see no. 835, below.

Note: The present text relates to the beginning of the religious community spoken of in the two preceding charters; and therefore an early date in Theobald's archiepiscopate is indicated. Orgar the priest is no longer mentioned.

803. Notification by H. called abbot of Warden [co. Text: MS—R308.

Note: Henry prior of Saint Neots occurs 1159, 1173. Abbot R[ichard de Blossesville], elected in 1174, resigned in July, 1179 (Gallia Christiana xi, 309). The Cistercian abbey of Sawtry was founded in 1146 or later. Peter of Paxton had succeeded Berengar as rector of Great Paxton by circa 1176 (no. 816, below). Mortuum Mare is the Cistercian abbey of Mortemer, in the forest of Lyons, in the diocese of Rouen (Seine-Inférieure).

Var. R. : 'comit' has been repeated in error.

Note : Malcolm IV of Scotland was earl of Huntingdon from 1157 to 1165 ; and William bishop of Moray died 24 January, 1162. The charters of Henry II and bishop Robert Chesney, which follow, suggest 1161 as the date of the present text. Malcolm's father was the earl Henry of no. 801, above, who died in 1152, during the life of his father, king David. Malcolm's mother, the countess Ada, who witnessed this charter and no. 801, above, was a daughter of William of Warenne, earl of Surrey, and died in 1178.

805. Agreement between the abbot and convent of Holyrood and Berengar the priest of Paxton, namely, that Berengar is the abbot and convent's clerk in the church of [Great] Paxton, and that he shall hold it of them as patrons, saving his right as parson, and the obedience which is due to the bishop of Lincoln ; rendering to the abbot and convent three marks a year. (Probably 1161.)

Note : The latest date of this charter is 24 January, 1162, when the bishop of Moray died, and it is probably of about the same date as king Malcolm's grant of the church to Holyrood (no. 804, above). It was expedient that an acknowledgment of the change of patronage should be obtained from Berengar as rector.

Note: Pope Alexander III was at Tusculum on 30 March, in the years 1171, 1172, and 1181 (see inform. Professor W. Holtzmann). The dates of the early abbots of Holyrood are somewhat uncertain, but the mention of abbot William suggests 1171 or 1172 as the date of the text, since abbots Robert and John are found in 1173 and afterwards (Liber Cartarum Sancte Crucis, pp. xix-xxi).

Note : The date is probably soon after David acceded to the earldom of Huntingdon in 1185. This grant superseded earl Simon's gift of the church of Great Paxton to master Peter of Paxton (no. 812, above) ; and earl David's grant to master Peter of the church of Potton (no. 654, above) may have been made by way of compensation for the loss of Great Paxton.

814. Notification by N[icholas de Sigillo] archdeacon of Huntingdon that, on the presentation of the abbot and canons of Holyrood, he has instituted master Peter as parson in the church of [Great] Paxton, subject to a pension of six marks to be paid yearly to the abbot and convent as patrons, whom R[obert II] late bishop of Lincoln instituted, as his charter witnesses, at the feast of Saint Botolph [17 June] ; and that Peter made oath that he would observe this agreement. Note : The date is probably soon after David's accession to the earldom of Huntingdon in 1185. Peter was still rector in 1223–1227, when he is described as 'senio fatigatus' (no. 822, below); and perhaps until shortly before November, 1233, when Reginald of Bath was instituted (no. 827, below). The charter of bishop Robert, referred to in the text, has not survived.

Note: The list of books pledged by Peter of Paxton is of great interest for the history of Roman law in England. It shows a clerk of no outstanding importance possessed, in 1219, of a small library of classical law-books, and it thus makes a definite contribution to the materials illustrating the reception of Roman jurisprudence in this country. On this subject see Maitland, Bracton and Azo, pp. xxv-vi; History of English Law i, 120 et seq. A somewhat larger collection is known to have existed at Peterborough in the late twelfth century (Swafham ed. Sparke, Scriptures Varii, p. 99), but Peter's collection is of peculiar interest as the library of an individual, and suggests that at the beginning of the thirteenth century a knowledge of Roman law was more widely spread in England than would be gathered from the few references to this literature which have come down to us from this period. Maitland quotes another instance of the Infortiatum being pledged by one Englishman to another in the year 1248, and lying in pawn in 1285 (Bracton and Azo, p. xxv).

Further, master Peter, though in spite of the infirmity of old age, he might pursue his right, yet for the sake of preserving peace between the churches and their rectors, has promised to pay two marks for the restoration of the church of the parson and vicar. 826. Notification by bishop Hugh [II] : With the assent of the Dean and Chapter, he has granted to the abbot and convent of Holyrood twenty marks a year in the name of a perpetual benefice from the church of [Great] Paxton, which is of his patronage, the six marks which formerly they were wont to receive from it being reckoned in. The said twenty marks shall be handed in charge to the sacrist of Lincoln by those who shall be instituted by the bishop in the church with its appurtenances and shall bear its due and accustomed charges ; and the sacrist shall pay the said twenty marks, with any sum that may be due for default, to the canons of Edinburgh or their messenger. Notes : Reginald became rector of Paxton in November, 1233. In 1157-1165, Malcolm king of Scots confirmed to the monks of Warden the lands of Paxton which they had assarted near Midloe (G. H. Fowler, Wardon Cartulary, no. 91). This 'was believed to be the land of Mulsoo and Sladewey' (ibid., no. 205f). The land in the furlong called Sladewey consisted of two and a half acres (ibid., no. 206b). The furlong of Mulsoe was in Stirt (ibid., no. 207a). Simon III of Saint Liz, earl of Huntingdon and Northampton, granted to the monks of Warden the road which they had on the day on which he came to the siege of Huntingdon, namely, from their grange of Midloe through the middle of the wood of Stert, unto Hayle (ibid., no. 207f, and p. 335). The Haile is now called the Kym river. Stirt was in the south-western part of the modern parish of Midloe (ibid., p. 309, note 70 ; and map 1 on the 1st plate after p. 373). Mulsoe and Sladewey appear to have been geographically in what is now known as Midloe near the boundary of Little Paxton (ibid., p. 335), and for ecclesiastical purposes, as the present text indicates, in the parish of [Great] Paxton. It is impossible to identify Stirt with Stirtloe in Buckden, as in Place-Names of Beds. and Hunts. (Place-Name Soc. iii), p. 254.

Texts: MS—A. Bishop Gravesend's roll of the archdeaconry of Huntingdon, mem. 9 (printed in L.R.S. xx, 180).

Var. R. in Gravesend's roll: ¹ Derneford. ² nunc in the blank. ³ Sau

Notes: The present text is a copy of the ordination 'sub sigillo domini episcopi' which the entry in Gravesend's roll says the chapter are to have. The vicar was to have a similar charter. The value of the vicarage in 1291 was £5 (Taxatio . . . P. Nicholai IV, p. 42). The value in 1535 was £16 6s. 1d. (Valor Ecclesiasticus iv, 263).

The true reading of the name in line 10 is Derneford, as in bishop Gravesend's roll. The Taxatio (ibid., p. 51b) states that the abbot and convent of Sawtry had in Derneford in lands and meadows £2, and in fruits of herds and animals £1 5s. 0d.; and in Little Paxton in lands, rents, and mills, £5 15s. 0d., and of the issues of cows 4s. A bull of pope Alexander III, dated 3 June, 1176, confirms to the abbot and brethren of Sawtry, inter alia, the land and meadow and pasture with waters, mills, issues of waters, fisheries, etc., which they have in Magna Pastona, the islands and waters of Dernefort, which Bereger [sic] the chaplain, Nigel de Luuetot, Geoffrey de Sancto Mauro, Iuo Quarrel, and Adam de Berneuilla gave them (W. Holtzmann, Papsturkunden in England, 1 band, p. 410; cp. ibid., pp. 366, 514).

The site of Derneford has been identified, for Mr Thomas Judd of Great Paxton informs the writer that there are two closes adjoining the highway from Great Paxton to Offord Darey, and extending down to the river Ouse, which are known as the First Danford and the Second Danford, and that there was a ford there in former days. The closes are now intersected by the railway. The Ordnance six-inch map shows an eyot in the Ouse at the point, and a cart track leading down to the river on both sides and through the river. There is now a ferry at the place, called Wray Ferry. It is curious that a terrier of the glebe of the rectory of Great Paxton, dated 25 August, 1634, repeats the mistake of the present text in the initial letter of the place when it speaks of 'land called Berneford wh^{ch} did belong to the monckes of Sawtry * * * next the Danford hedge' (Lincoln Diocesan Registry).

The Place-Names of Bedfordshire & Huntingdonshire (English Place-Name Soc. iii), ed. Mawer and Stenton, p. 184, gives 'hidden ford' as the meaning of Derneforde, and places it in Elton, where it is associated with the river Nen (Rotuli Hundredorum ii, 656); but the first and third references there given to the name relate to Derneford in Great Paxton. By a misleading coincidence Sawtry abbey held land both in Derneford in Elton and Derneford in Great Paxton. In 31 Elizabeth (1588-9) a final concord was passed between John Belley, LL.D., and John Barbor concerning forty-three acres of land, ten acres of meadow, twenty-three acres of pasture, two acres of wood, and eight acres of land covered with water in Derneford, Paxton Magna, Oford Darcie, and Dedington, and also of free fishing in the water of Derneford (G. J. Turner, Feet of Fines . . . Huntingdon, p. 194).

836. Memorandum: Whereas, in 1293, a fine of one mark for murder having been demanded from the village of Great Paxton, the whole village unanimously asserted that the servants of the church of [Great] Paxton ought to contribute to such fine and also to lot and scot, John le Fleming, canon of Lincoln and farmer of Paxton, asserting the contrary; and whereas the sheriff of Huntingdon, on a precept from the barons of the Exchequer, held an inquisition, 22 August, 1293, in the full shire-court, in the chapel of Huntingdon castle; the jurors said that the servants of the church never were wont to contribute nor ought to contribute to the said fines in respect of the lands which they hold of the church, which are pure and perpetual alms, since those lands are and always have been as free from all secular charge as the rest of the land which the rector keeps in his hands.

837. Letter of W. the abbot and the convent of Holyrood to the dean and chapter of Lincoln: We ask you to pay to our messengers, Adam called Staffri and Patrick, twenty marks in respect of our pension from Paxton for the year last past. You shall understand that that clerk who was wont to receive a hundred shillings in the said church has gone the way of all flesh; wherefore you shall in future answer to no one for the said pension unless you receive an order from us. But if you wish to buy the pension from us, we will alienate it for two hundred marks; knowing for certain that we would by no means sell a yearly rent of twenty marks in our own parts for two hundred marks; but we have thought good, on account of the dangers of the roads, and the distance of the place, to assent to the sale of the pension for the sum aforesaid. Note : This letter is dated approximately by the correspondence which follows.
Subsequent letters reveal that the clerk who was believed to have gone the way church (cp. nos. 838-842).

838. Letter of W. the abbot and the convent of Holyrood to the chapter of Lincoln : With respect to the pension due from the church of Paxton, to be delivered to our messenger yesterday, we asked you by our letters, containing amongst other things that we offered to alienate the said pension to you ; to which you answered in part by your letters (although you have thought fit to send back our messenger with empty hands, not without heavy expense to us and, as we think, divine displeasure, solely for the supposed reason that we through weariness hold the said pension as lost), signifying by the same that you have appointed certain friends to buy the said pension, on the understanding that we should seal with our common seal the letters of sale intended for you, by your messenger, and should send you all the instruments which are in our possession touching the said pension by messengers appointed to receive the aforesaid sum in your parts. Concerning which things we intimate to you that, if it please you to buy the said pension for a sum of two hundred marks to be paid to us at your risk and expense in the kingdom of Scotland, or at least in the monastery of Durham, and also to satisfy master Walter of Shelfanger in respect of his perpetual pension of one hundred shillings, and to pay to us the said pension now for a year withheld, we are ready absolutely to resign to you by our letters all the instruments which we have touching the pension, and all right which we have in the pension, giving no other security whatever In any event, however, send us now, as you are bound, by the bearer of the presents our pension which has been withheld, as you know, for a year. And if you should not do this, we will do nothing touching the things aforesaid, [The abbot and convent end their letter with a complaint that they are put to much needless trouble every year in obtaining the pension and the penalty of twenty shillings for payment deferred.] Farewell. ADD. CHART.

839. Copy of letter of Nicholas the dean and the chapter of Lincoln to the abbot and convent of Holyrood : By the tenor of a certain letter of yours which lately you sent to us by certain Adam called Staffri and Patrick, then your messengers, we understood that you then asserted (as you learnt from the report of trustworthy men), that Walter of Shelfanger, clerk, who from the church of Paxton, which is subject to a pension to you, was wont to receive one hundred shillings, had been withdrawn from this light ; you nevertheless by your aforesaid letter offered, both liberally and kindly, of your grace, to sell to us for the advantage of our church the yearly pension of twenty marks, due from our hands to you and the same W., for two hundred marks.

For this to all and singular of you we presently returned and still return our special thanks ; and from our heart beg that, completing the fulness of goodwill, which in this respect you then had towards us, by now kindly carrying it into operation, you will now by a title of sale grant the said pension to us and our church for two hundred marks even if, as you believe, the said W. has in truth been taken from our midst, we on our part, fully admitting the charge of making good to the said W. if he still survives, the one hundred shillings a year from the aforementioned church, or otherwise of doing what is acceptable to him in this respect. If therefore you are willing to accept this plan, which is in effect no different from that which your grace then kindly offered, you will not delay to send to us by the bearers of the presents a transcript of the letter which you have about the advowson or patronage of the said church, and of all the muniments which you have about such pension and also the form of sale or release which you are now ready to make to us concerning it, and whatever else may make for our security in this respect; so that, when we have viewed and inspected them, and have given them some consideration, and at length obtaining under seal what ought to be sealed, we may without delay cause the said two hundred marks to be paid to you for the said pension, at a place to be named to us by you, or otherwise by us. Write back therefore clearly and openly, if you please, by our messenger that it is your goodwill to acquiesce in this respect. Since it is troublesome, as you know, and very expensive both to us and to you to send messengers and couriers to and fro in this business, we have for some time had the said two hundred marks ready for buying the said pension, and still have them; but unless you fulfil your promises in this behalf more quickly by bringing the matter on your part to a conclusion, we shall arrange to turn the aforesaid money at the right time to another use in the interest of our church. Farewell. At Lincoln. 18 January, 1285.

Endorsed: Memorandum that immediately after our messenger had ridden towards Scotland with this letter all those instruments which we were asking for were found here in our northern treasury at Lincoln. (1284-1285.)

GREAT PAXTON

[In the present series of texts, nos. 846–865, the fixed points for dating are the few dated charters and Reginald of Bath's tenure of the rectory of Great Paxton, 1233–circa 1254. Further evidence is supplied by the contents of some of the documents and a comparison of the lists of witnesses, and by the handwriting. Nos. 848, 849, 852, 854, and 858 were written by Simon the clerk, about 1230–1240, in a style which was then old-fashioned.]

Text: MS—R313.

Note: Le Neve, Fasti, gives no date for Robert de Hicche's tenure of the archdeaconry of Huntingdon. Philip de Fauconberg occurs as archdeacon from 2 December, 1223 (L.R.S. ix, 44) to 9 February, 1226-7 (ibid., 54); Gilbert occurs 9 April, 1230 (ibid. vi, 235) to 1237-8 (ibid. xi, 256); William of Arundel occurs from 1240-1 (ibid., 272; Cal. of Close Rolls, 1237-1242, p. 238) to 1246-7 (L.R.S. xi, 290); Roger de Raveningham occurs from 1246-7 (ibid., 290) till his death shortly before 24 September, 1276 (ibid. xx, 183), though it is somewhat doubtful whether he held the archdeaconry continuously during the period. Master John de Raveningham, archdeacon of Huntingdon, in Cal. Pat. Rolls, 1258-1266, p. 20, should be read master Roger. The witnesses of the present text when compared with those of the other charters of this series point to a period circa 1225-1240. This would indicate that Hiche succeeded Philip de Fauconberg as archdeacon circa 1228, and vacated the office circa 1230. It is significant that a Robert de Hiche was instituted to the church of Clantfield, in Oxfordshire, in 1219-20, on the presentation of the abess and convent of Elstow (ibid. vi, 1); and that, in 1230-1, a master Robert Hiche, subdeacon, was admitted to the same benefice on the same presentation (ibid., 34). If the earlier Robert was the archdeacon, he may have died in 1230, and been succeeded at Clantfield by a relative. A later archdeacon of Huntingdon, it may be observed, Roger de Raveningham, on resigning the rectory of Burton le Coggles, in Lincolnshire, in 1268, was succeeded by master Roger de Raveningham, junior, subdeacon (L.R.S. xx, 29).

Notes. Reginald of Bath was instituted rector of Paxton 11 November, 1233 (no. 827. above), and Robert of Saint Agatha was rector in 1255 (no. 832. above). The hand is rather old-fashioned for the period, and it is found again in nos. 848-849, 852, and 858. Ivo le Moygne, who appears here as a witness, is found in 12 and 21 Henry III in Feet of Fines . . . Huntingdon, ed. G. J. Turner, pp. 12, 17. The most probable date seems to be 1233-1240.

The Hebrew Starr which follows next shews that when Thomas son of William made the present grant to master Reginald, Diaia son of Miles, a Jew, had a hold upon the land.

ADD. CHART.

855. Hebrew Starr being a release by Diaia, son of Miles, to Reginald of Bath, parson of Great Paxton, of any claim which Diaia had against Reginald in respect of two acres of land in the fields of Great Paxton, by reason of any debt or claim which Diaia had against Thomas son of William from whom Reginald acquired the said land. (1233—circa 1240.)

Notes: For the date see note to no. 854, above.

The Editor is deeply indebted to Mr Herbert Loewe, M.A., Reader in Rabbinics in the University of Cambridge, for the transcription and translation of this Starr, and for the exhaustive and learned notes which follow.

NOTES

This Starr, relating to land in Great Paxton, by Saint Neots, co. Huntingdon, is of considerable interest. It is the only Starr as yet known in connection with this county. The number of Hebrew thirteenth century charters is very small. M. D. Davis, whose Corpus of Hebrew Deeds of English Jews before 1290 was published in 1888, gives 208 documents. Since 1888 less than ten additions have been found. On the other hand, Latin charters are common. H. E. Salter estimates that Oxford Colleges alone possess 50,000 examples, though his limit of inclusion is the year 1500 (see p. xiv, vol. ii. of my Starrs and Jewish Charters in the British Museum, hereafter cited as B.M.S.). In view of the rarity of Starrs, it will be seen that each new specimen demands careful study. We have still much to learn about Hebrew palaeography and the history of the Jews of England in the thirteenth century. This Paxton specimen gives us an otherwise unknown Jewish principal; it adds to our terminology; and it contains other points of interest. To those whose studies lie in county history the Starrs are likewise often of value. They sometimes preserve place-names otherwise unknown, and they sometimes testify to pronunciation. This Starr, for example, tells us that the 'Parson' of Great Paxton was called the 'Person', and that his name Reginald was shortened to Renot. It will therefore be conceded that details need minute examination and this is the excuse for treating this Starr at some length. This specimen is in an excellent state of preservation: every word can be read.

First it must be noted that there is no date, no trace of a seal (though a slit has been cut), no endorsement and no indenture: the corresponding Latin document bears no date. Clearly the Starr is a holograph, the work of an amateur and not of a professional scribe. Very few Jews were illiterate, and these short releases are usually drawn up by the principal. Longer documents usually conform to the rules of contracts, and they nearly always are attested: there are no witnesses to this Starr. Among the indications of amateur drafting, it is interesting to note the gaps at the ends of the lines. In line 6 we have the only exception to this violation of the rule. Before the natural hole in the parchment, the writer has written and then struck through the first two letters of the first word in line 7. But he has not done so at the ends of lines 7 and 8, nor, indeed, at the ends of the other lines. These gaps should all have been filled, to prevent insertions, either by the method used in line 6 before the hole, or by employing extended letters (litteræ dilatabiles).

Another breach of scribal law is furnished by line 9a. This is plainly an addition between the lines. When such an addition is made after drawing up a Starr and before signing it, the words so added should be specified between the last word of the Starr and the first signature or attestation. As an example, see no. 127 in Davis, p. 263. Here no remark is made that line 9a is an addition, and it would be possible, on this ground, to contest the validity of the addition, and even the authenticity of the Starr itself.

(b) Proper names in the Starr

- (1) Paxton: In vol. iii of the Plea Rolls of the Jewish Exchequer (p. 65 in Jenkinson), under the year 1275, there is a record of a former debt of £80 under the names of Solomon, son of Solomon, and Robert Fychet de Paxton, payable in 1269.
- (2) Huntingdon: There does not appear to have been a Jewry at Huntingdon in the twelfth century. The name is not included in either of Jacobs's lists (Jews of Angevin England, pp. 373 and 382). Huntingdon did not contribute to the Northampton Dossam of 1194 (see list published by I. Abrahams and H. Jenkinson in J.H.S. Miscellanies no. 13; 1925), nor to the tallage of 1241 (Stokes, Studies in Anglo-Jewish History, pp. 85 foll.: the reference on p. 92 would appear to be mainly to Cambridgeshire). But Samuel Presbiter appears in the Huntingdon fines for 1198-9 (Turner, p. 1), and there was a Moses, son of Isaac, of Huntingdon, in 1226 (Stokes, p. 146). Manser, of Huntingdon, was a Bedford chirographer about 1244 (ibid. 151). In 1272 a small sum (3 shillings) was levied on the Jews of Huntingdon (ibid. 179). A Manser, of Huntingdon, had left property in 1290 (J. H. S. ii, 88). He is called 'le Chapeleyn' (Stokes, p. 196). In 1275 queen Eleanor expelled the Jews from Cambridge, and the Cambridge Jews, with the Archae of the chirographers, were moved to Huntingdon.

- (3) Thomas, son of William, of Paxton: Does not occur in the Plea Rolls of the Jewish Exchequer.
- (4) Reginald de Bath: Does not occur in the Plea Rolls of the Jewish Exchequer. Mentioned in Huntingdon fines for 1241 and 1248, see Turner, 18, 22.
- (5) Diaia, son of Miles: The name Diaia, Dieaie, Dyai, etc., is a shorter form of Deus-aie, 'May God Help,' the motto of William I. The Hebrew form is Yehoshayah. Owing to the affection in which the Conqueror was held by the Jews, his name became a 'Shem Qadosh' or Hebrew appellation. It is not found outside England and Normandy. Similarly the name Mansir, Manser was copied from Manserus (Hebrew Mamzêr, bastard), a name given by French and Latin authors to William I. On these points see B.M.S., vol. ii, notes 603, 902.

Miles or Milo was a name sometimes borne by Jews.

No Diaia son of Miles is known. There were several Jews at Cambridge called Miles or Milo. Thus, in 1231 the property of Alan, son of Warin, was mortgaged to Milo of Cambridge (Stokes, p. 147): in 1234 a Miro (sic) of Cambridge is mentioned (ibid.). In 1272 the roll of debts at Cambridge included the names of Milo, filius Magistri, and Diaia, filius Magistri de Clou'n (ibid. p. 158 and p. 277). At the same time there was a Diaia, son of Solomon, in Huntingdon (ibid. 278). As names often go in cycles, the Diaia, son of Milo, in the Starr may be a son of Milo, son of Diaia. The name is clearly Miles and not Elias, as at first read. Diaia son of Elias is known.

(c) Words

Line 1—Rav: This Hebrew title, Rabbi, was sometimes applied in courtesy to Christians, both to ecclesiastics and to laymen, see B.M.S., vol. ii, p. xlix; note 1017*h*; vol. i, p. 87: see also p. 79 of no. 209 of The Eagle (St John's College, Cambridge), where the two St John's College Starrs are published. In one of these the title is given to a layman.

Renot: The word is vocalized and therefore the pronunciation is established. Renot, the shorter form of Reginald, is spelt with T (Teth) not T (Tau). This emphasises the hardness of the T-sound. It was nearer to D than to Th. But very often English D was rendered by Hebrew T. In B.M. no. 1178*a* there are two interesting examples which either illustrate the varieties of transcription or, if the transcription be constant, testify to variety of pronunciation. In that document T is used for English T in Saint, in Trinity, in Ricart (=French Richard?), and in Appleton. In the name Withey, T together with D (dalet) represents Th. But the name Edward has Hebrew D for the first and Hebrew T for the second dental consonant. Therefore either Teth and Dalet had the same sound or the name must have been pronounced Edward and not Edward. The latter seems more probable.

de Bah: In Latin charters the name Bath appears as de Bathonia, de Bada, and de Ba. The final h of the Hebrew no doubt is intended to ensure the long vowel (ā). The word is vocalized and the scribe is careful to put a dagesh in the Beth, in order to insist on Bā, and not to allow the name to be pronounced Vā. A Sephardi would probably not have used the dot, since the Beth Ropheh and the Beth Daghus usually have the same sound among Sephardim. For the same reason, the final h was necessary. A Sephardi would have used the vowel gameš (ā), and omitted the final h. Our scribe had to use pāthāh (ā) since he would have read the gameš as ō, not as ā. Hence his device of ā + h = ā. We learn from this word that de Ba was not merely a written abbreviation but that it was actually spoken. For the Hebrew scribe acts as a phonographic recorder: he would not transliterate an abbreviation.

Pérsone: The ē of the first syllable is established by the Yod. The final alef sometimes does and sometimes does not imply final e mute. On this question, see B.M.S. index, s.v., alef. Here the final alef was probably sounded, i.e., Pérsone and not Pérson, since the silent T of Renof is indicated by Sheva.

Min: Min, literally 'from,' was used for 'of' when the ordinary use of the construct was impossible, as here. In the same way the Latin de (from) = French de (of). See index to B.M.S. and vol. ii, note 251e.

Line 2—Acres: For the form, see B.M.S., vol. ii, note 251b. After the sin, there is a black stain on the parchment: this is not a consonant.

Qarqa': The first qof appears to have a dagesh, but this is not the case. The foot of the letter extends almost to the roof but the ink failed, hence the top of the line looks like a dot.

'Took': An unusual term in this connection: I know of no other instance.

Line 3—Thomas, son of William, the principal of the Latin document: William is spelt Gilyēme: Gilyam, with stroke over the g (=w) and one yod in the second syllable (i.e. yā, not yē) is more usual.

My heirs: Note the two final yods, to prevent Yoreshai (my heirs) being read as Yoreshi (my heir): see B.M.S., Hebrew index, p. 504, s.v.

field[s]: The corresponding Latin has campo, not campis. Nevertheless I am not certain that the Hebrew singular (Sedhēh, not Sedhē) should be rendered "field". I think it is collective. 'The field of Great Paxton' would be a very vague description: one would expect 'the field of Great Paxton which is called' or 'which is situated' etc. The Hebrew is probably collective, and that is why the rendering 'field[s]' has been preferred. In B.M. no. 1177 the Hebrew has mis-Sedheh Kefar Netel Ton, and the Latin, in campis de Netelton: the Latin has the plural and the Hebrew the singular. In B.M. 1178a the Hebrew singular Sedheh is defined by the field-name. In 1188 the Hebrew Sadheh = meadow = pratium, as opposed to Mir'eh, pastura, and Qarqa', toftum.

Line 4—To raise claim: A common term in this connection; for others, see B.M.S. index, s.v. claim, etc.

Line 5—Designated: The Starr confines itself to this term as a rendering of predictus: others will be found in B.M.S.

Line 6—Attorney: (1) The singular is unusual: the participle Bā' is more commonly used in the plural. (2) The phrase literally means 'one who comes on my authority.' Another term is mē-hāmāh (by reason of). Possibly 'assign' would be a better translation. See B.M.S. Hebrew index, p. 502.

Line 10—Creation of the world: For the phrase see B.M.S., vol. ii, note 114.

Line 11—For the practice of encircling signatures see B.M.S., vol. ii, index, s.v. signatures.

I have written and signed: In the Excursus on the use of seals, in B.M.S., I have suggested that this phrase should be rendered literally 'I have signed and sealed' whenever the document bears a seal, or, in the case of a copy, when it may be inferred from the language that the original, deposited in the chest, was sealed. This document has no trace of a seal, but there is a slit, clearly visible in the facsimile, after the signature. Possibly therefore the literal rendering is to be preferred here.

Note: Woodland is an extinct village, which is now included in the parish of Wrotham, co. Kent. It is entered in the Valor Ecclesiasticus (i, 116b) as a rectory, and appears on the map at the end of the text as half way between Shoreham and Wrotham. Bacon (Liber Regis, p. 863) describes the parish as 'destructa,' annexed to the vicarage of Wrotham. 'Knock' is seemingly the neighbouring parish of Knockholt.

Nos. 866-869.

These four charters seem to be about the same date. Thomas de Audeham and Achard de Audeham alias Achard de Wrotham, appear in final concords in 1219 and 1225. Gilbert de Audeham is probably a little later.

Note: The ink is badly faded, and part of the document is illegible. The priory is evidently that of Ware (cp. L.R.S. vi, 307-8; xx, 138). The date is before the death of dean Roger in 1223. The handwriting points to the episcopate of Hugh II rather than of Hugh I. Willam son of Fulk was a canon of Lincoln in 1215 (dij 69 l 42).

ADD. CHART.

871. Ratification by Paul the abbot and the convent of Leicester of the grant made by Robert Fitz-Parnell, earl of Leicester, to bishop William and the church of Lincoln, of the manor of Asfordby, with the advowson of the church, and also of six carucates and three bovates in Seagrave, and of all that the abbot and convent held in the same village in the fifth year of king John. The earl's charter, which is recited, states that he made this gift in return for the quitclaim made to him by the bishop and chapter of Lincoln of the land which they held in Leicester, as well within the walls as in the suburbs and in Knighton, and which they granted to him and his heirs, to hold of the bishop by hereditary right by the service of one knight's fee; saving to the bishop and chapter the church of Saint Margaret within the walls of Leicester with the chapel of Knighton, which church of Saint Margaret is known to be a prebend of the church of Lincoln. Text : MS—Orig. dij/65/1/23.

Var. R. : ¹ sic. ² The bottom left hand corner has been torn off.

Notes : The date of earl Robert's charter lies between the accession of bishop William of Blois on 24 August, 1203, and the earl's death on 20 or 21 October, 1204. The ratification of the abbot and convent was given, no doubt, about the same time.

In 1086 Remigius bishop of Lincoln had ten carucates in Leicester and two churches (Domesday Book i, 230b, col. 2), representing an area which is to be identified with Saint Margaret's Fields on the east side of Leicester, outside the walls of the borough. This area consisted in 4 George III of 1,020 acres (Enclosure Act, 4 Geo. III, cap. 14), which paid tithe to Saint Margaret's church. 'The Bishop's fee, as a rateable area distinct from the borough, was in modern times nearly coextensive with Saint Margaret's parish' (Bateson, i, pp. xvii, xviii). Saint Margaret's church was always treated as in the borough (ibid., xix, note 1).

In Knighton, the bishop had two-thirds of a hide (Domesday Book i, 231, col. 1). Knighton, which lies south-by-south-east of Leicester, was a chapelry in the parish of Saint Margaret (Reg. Ant. i, 139-40). The bishop's manor in Leicester was called Leicester or Knighton alternatively.

In 1086 the bishop had seventeen burgesses at Leicester (Domesday Book i, 230b, col. 2). By April, 1139, the number of mansiones of burgesses had been increased to thirty-two (above, vol. i, 190-1). Robert le Bossu, earl of Leicester, granted to bishop Alexander ten burgesses within the walls (above, vol. ii, 16), at a date which may be presumed to be before 1139.

The documents printed in these volumes illustrate the relations between the fees of the earl of Leicester and those of the bishop :

- (a) Circa 1138, earl Robert le Bossu gave ten burgesses, as mentioned above, to the church of Lincoln and bishop Alexander in satisfaction of damages inflicted by the earl and his men (above, vol. ii, 16-17).
- (b) In 1143, bishop Alexander granted the lordship of Knighton to earl Robert le Bossu in exchange for lands in Farthinghoe and Syresham ; whereupon earl Robert gave the whole manor of Knighton to the abbot and convent of Leicester (Nichols, History of Leicestershire iv, i, 235-7).
- (c) In 1160-1163, earl Robert le Bossu acknowledged that he held by inheritance in the manor of Knighton ten pounds in the land of the bishop and church of Lincoln, by the service of one knight (above, vol. ii, 5).
- (d) In 1204, king John confirmed a settlement between earl Robert Fitz-Parnell and bishop William. The bishop and chapter released the manor of Knighton to the earl for the service of one knight's fee, saving the church of Saint Margaret and the chapel of Knighton ; and the earl, with the consent of Paul abbot of Leicester, gave to bishop William and the church of Lincoln the village of Asfordby, with the advowson of the church, and the abbot's land in Seagrave. Further, Farthinghoe and Syresham (see (b) above) were restored to the earl (above, vol. i, 139-41).
- (e) Circa 1203, in the present text the abbot and convent of Leicester ratified earl Robert Fitz-Parnell's grant to bishop William and the church of Lincoln of Asfordby and Seagrave, as in (d), above.
- (f) On 20 April, 1204, king John confirmed the preceding grant (above, vol. i, 141-2).
- (g) In 1203-1204, earl Robert Fitz-Parnell granted to bishop William in augmentation of the exchange for the manor of Leicester [or Knighton] sixteen virgates in Thurmaston, for the sake of peace (no. 872, below).
- (h) Circa 1217, the settlement of 1203-1204, which was very disadvantageous to the church of Lincoln, was reversed, and the manor of Knighton was restored to Lincoln (nos. 875-879, below).

Text : MS—Orig. dij 73 242. (The bottom right hand corner has been torn off.)

Var. R. : For the words enclosed in square brackets cp. the next charter below.

Note : The date is after the death of Robert Fitz-Parnell on 20 or 21 October, 1204, when Saier de Quincy, who had married Margaret his sister and coheir succeeded to part of his estates. It was before 13 March, 1207, when Saier became earl of Winchester; and probably before February, 1206, when Jocelin of Wells became bishop of Wells. It has not been known hitherto that Jocelin was prebendary of Saint Margaret's, Leicester (cp. below, no. 874). The prebend was often held with the archdeaconry of Leicester, as e.g. seemingly by William of Blois, Jocelin's predecessor, but there is no evidence that Jocelin himself was archdeacon. In the documents that follow, the appearance of Jocelin as a witness, with others from the church of Wells, is remarkable, but this phenomenon is not peculiar to charters relating to Leicester, as may be seen above in vol. ii, p. 287, and L.R.S. vi, 185-7, 189, 192, 194, 213, 214, etc. Jocelin, it will be remembered, was brother to bishop Hugh II of Lincoln.

875. Agreement of William the abbot and the convent of Leicester with Hugh II bishop of Lincoln and his church of Lincoln with respect to the manor of Knighton and the suburb of Leicester which, in connection with the dispute between Robert [Fitz-Parnell] earl of Leicester and bishop William [of Blois], had, to its great injury, been alienated from the church of Lincoln, and had for the most part passed to Leicester abbey : The abbot and convent release to the bishop and the church of Lincoln their right in the manor and suburb, so that it be not to the prejudice of Simon de Montfort, earl of Leicester, in the residue of the suburb ; saving to the abbey its mills of Leicester ; saving also sixty shillings which the bishop and the church of Lincoln released to the abbey. The bishop and the church of Lincoln shall retain the land of Thurmaston which earl Robert gave to the church of Lincoln in the time of bishop William. The bishop and his church have released to the abbey the land of Seagrave, with the homage of Stephen of Seagrave, which was assigned to bishop William in part compensation for the said manor and suburb, and also the mill of Seagrave. At Leicester abbey. 21 February, 1218.

Var. R. : The charter is much injured, and words have been supplied conjecturally within square brackets.

Notes : Master William of Lincoln, who was one of bishop Hugh's clerks, is described as canon of Lincoln when he witnesses the bishop's acts from 17 January, 1220, to 15 July, 1226 (L.R.S. vi, 183–215). In 1230–1, when he holds an inquisition, he appears again as canon (ibid. ix, 195). In the interval, he is to be identified with the W. archdeacon of Leicester, to whom from 1226 to 1229 mandates for induction were directed (ibid. vi, 302–7); for Ralf of Dunham, circa 1220, granted his houses in Pottergate, Lincoln, to master William of Lincoln, canon of Lincoln, his uncle (Dij/78/2/39); and, circa 1240, Roger de Derleton states that he had these houses by gift from his lord, William of Lincoln, formerly archdeacon of Leicester (Dij/78/2/38).

William of Lincoln was rector of Sutterton from before 1220 until perhaps 1235 (ibid. iii, 117 : xi, 2); vicar of Scothorne from before 1220 (ibid. iii, 201), probably until that year (ibid., 212); and rector of Stanford on Avon from 1220 (ibid. vi, 98). On 1 March, 1223, he was one of the witnesses to the act of institution of (another) master William of Lincoln to the last-named church (ibid., 200). A certain William of Lincoln was chancellor of Wells in 1247 and 1248 (Hist. MSS. Com., Cal. of MSS. of the Dean and Chapter of Wells i, 72, 81, 496).

William's immediate predecessors in the archdeaconry were :

Robert de Chesney (afterwards bishop), after 1135 to 1148.

Hugh Barre, circa 1148 to circa 1158.

Baldric de Sigillo, circa 1158; who was succeeded by Roger of Rolveston, circa 1191; who became dean of Lincoln in 1195.

Reimund, who occurs 1196–1198 (above ii, p. 330).

William of Blois, who occurs circa 1199. He became bishop of Lincoln, 24 August, 1203.

Reimund, who appears as archdeacon, 20 April, 1215 (B.M., Egerton MS. 3033, f. 17/32), and received mandates for induction from 1220 to 1226 (L.R.S. vi, 280–300).

His immediate successors were :

Robert Grosseteste, who received mandates from 1229 to 1231 (ibid., 308–21), when he resigned the office. He became bishop of Lincoln, 17 June, 1235.

William [of Drayton], who received mandates from 1232 to the last year but one of bishop Hugh's episcopate, 1234 (ibid., 321–5).

John of Basingstoke, also called John of Winchester (L.R.S. xi, 390–1), who received mandates to induct from the beginning of bishop Grosseteste's episcopate, 17 June, 1235, till his death in 1252 (ibid. xi, 385–440).

Solomon, who received mandates from 1252 or 1253 (ibid., p. 440) till 1274 (ibid. xx, 138–155).

Roger of Saxenhurst, who received mandates from 1275 (ibid., p. 158) till his death in 1294.

The succession of the prebendaries of Saint Margaret's, Leicester, is more obscure :

Jocelin of Wells occurs 1205 (above, no. 873).

Robert Grosseteste held the prebend, probably from 1229 when he became archdeacon of Leicester; and he retained it after he resigned the archdeaconry in 1231. On 12 November, 1232 (no. 890, below), he was still prebendary, and perhaps he so continued until he became bishop of Lincoln in 1235.

John of Basingstoke, or of Winchester, was the prebendary on 1 April, 1236 (L.R.S. xi, 390-1), and probably all the time that he was archdeacon of Leicester (cp. below, no. 891).

Solomon held the prebend with the archdeaconry, probably 1253-1274 (cp. below, no. 891).

Roger of Saxenhurst also held the prebend with the archdeaconry 1275-1294 (cp. L.R.S. xx, 159-60).

If the practice of holding the prebend with the archdeaconry was an old one it would suggest that Jocelin of Wells was archdeacon of Leicester circa 1205. Whether William of Blois was prebendary as well as archdeacon is uncertain (cp. above, no. 873).

Endorsed : Non pro Nassington' (15 cent.).

Slit for seal-tag torn away. Size : 12 x 8 inches.

Text : MS—Orig. dij/84/1/1.

Note : The document has been badly gnawed, but it seems safe to identify the place with Apethorpe. As the endorsement shews, it was in some way associated with Nassington, though it is plain that that cannot be the missing name. In 1086, the king had two hides in Patorp (Apethorpe) which belonged to Nassington (Domesday Book i, 220, col. 1). In 9 Edward I, Apethorpe was certified to be ancient demesne of the Crown (Bridges, The History . . . of Northamptonshire ii, 424).

On a docket attached by a riband cut from the fold of the charter : 'Merston' iuxta Baunebury.'

Tag for seal. Size : $5\frac{5}{8} \times 3\frac{1}{8}$ inches.

Texts : MS—Orig. Dij/83/2/35. R168.

Var. R. : The charter has been injured, and missing words have been supplied from R enclosed within square brackets. ¹ Rag' R ; but in no. 895, below, it is Rogero.

Note : William de Chesney, the grantor, was brother to bishop Robert de Chesney. The nephews, who appear as witnesses, were the two sons of his brother Hugh de Chesney. The grantor seems to have died 1164–1170 (H. E. Salter, Eynsham Cartulary i, 415–18). William de Chesney attended Henry II on various occasions during his stay in France from 1153 to 1163, and the present charter should probably be assigned to this period. John filius Gis'll' is almost certainly John fitz Gilbert, the king's marshall.

ADD. CHART.

895. Grant by William de Chesney to Philip son of William his man, of the court which was Humphrey the butler's in Marston, as freely as Humphrey held it of his brother Robert de Chesney, bishop of Lincoln, and of three quarters of a tenement which Humphrey held of the same bishop Robert. Var. R.: ¹ supplied from Salter. ² supplied from the bishop's roll.

Note: In margin of the bishop Hugh's roll is the note: 'Hec nondum tradita est set est in scriniis domini episcopi'; which indicates the reason for the charter being at Lincoln. This grant seems to have been abortive. Bishop Grosseteste appropriated the church to Eynsham in 1240 (Salter, loc. cit. i, 176).

Var. R.: ¹ sic.

Notes: Hugh, the father of Robert the grantee, was the Hugh de Hardreshull who was enfeoffed by the earl of Chester of a fee at Hartshill, co. Warwick, from which place he and his descendants took their name (Dugdale, The Antiquities of Warwickshire (ed. 1765), pp. 763-4; Farrer, Honors and Knights' Fees ii, 151). From the service by which the family held Clayworth they were known in Lincolnshire and Nottinghamshire by the designation of Ostriciarius or Falconer; and William, the eldest son of Robert the grantee, was the first to use the name of Hardreshull in those counties. Dugdale, in his account of Hartshill, does not mention the Ostricer serjeanty. Hugh, the father of the grantee, is described as Ostriciarius, circa 1150, in a Derbyshire charter (above ii, 7), which perhaps indicates that he held Clayworth before the present grant to his son Robert Ostriciarius or austurcarius implies a short-winged hawk. Sertellarii stands for cercellarii, a hawk (nisi) for hunting teal.

The next grant proves that the king here is Henry II. The date is near the beginning of his reign, for in the pipe roll of Michaelmas 1156, the sheriff of Nottinghamshire and Derbyshire is allowed 112 shillings for land in Clayworth held by Robert son of Hugh (Great Rolls of the Pipe 2, 3, and 4 Henry II, p. 38). This allowance is continued year by year until Michaelmas, 1163 (Pipe Roll Soc. vi, 1); after which, until Michaelmas, 1176, the land is held by 'the son of Robert son of Hugh' (ibid., vii, 15; xxv, 90). From Michaelmas, 1177 (ibid., xxvi, 57), the tenant is William son of Robert son of Hugh, until Michaelmas, 1188, the last year of Henry II (ibid., xxxviii, 193). On his accession to the throne in the year 1189, king Richard gave the county of Nottingham to his brother John, count of Mortain, and it is to this time approximately that we must assign John's grant of Clayworth to Hugh son of Robert son of Hugh, which is printed below. While John held the county of Nottingham no accounts from the county appear in the pipe rolls. As a result of his rebellion in 1194, John lost his lands, at about the Exchequer half year, and in view of this it is significant that at Michaelmas, 1194, the sheriff is allowed 56 shillings for a half year in respect of land in Clayworth, the tenant once more being William son of Robert son of Hugh (ibid., N.S., v, 80), and that the full allowance of 112 shillings is made in the following years in respect of his tenure. Entries in the pipe rolls shew that these successive tenants of Clayworth also held land in Caistor, co. Lincoln. They also had land in Hagworthingham (A, nos. 644, 645). Through the marriage of Robert, the grantee, son of Hugh de Hardreshull with a daughter of William of Saleby, his descendants inherited the manor of Saleby and other Lincolnshire property.

 in the pipe roll of 4 Henry II, A.D. 1158, allowance is made to the sheriff of Lincolnshire of 13*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* in respect of land given to Ivo Falconarius for buying falcons
 (The Great Roll of the Pipe, 2, 3, and 4 Henry II, p. 136). Ivo is not mentioned in the subsequent pipe rolls, but beginning with Michaelmas, 1159, allowance of 8*l.* is made to Turgis and Henry the Falconer in respect of lands in Caistor (Pipe Roll Society, i, 1).

A charter of bishop Robert de Chesney, dated 29 May, 1163, has many of the same witnesses as the present text, i.e., inter alios, Ralf the sub-dean, master Alexander

 There is also (seemingly a younger) Roger of Derby, who does not appear to be a canon (A, no. 807).

The probable date of the text is circa 1163.

Note : In A this charter seems to be included under the head of Meering. The church of All Saints may be the church of Sutton on Trent which is thus dedicated. Meering adjoins Sutton, and belonged to the same fee ; or it may be the church of Besthorpe, or North Searle, or North Collingham, on the east side of the Trent, of which places the churches are dedicated to All Saints. The handwriting points to a date early in the thirteenth century.

Note : The names of master Malger (see above, vol. ii, 309-10) and S[amson] of Newark (see above, vol. i, 80) indicate that H. the dean in this and the two following texts is to be identified with Hamelin, circa 1164-69. The use of dei gratia also points to an early date.

ADD. CHART.

920. Notification by bishop Alexander : I have founded near Newark a hospital of Christ for sick poor persons, and for their clothing and victuals I have from my own property appointed a yearly rent, namely, four pounds from the fixed rents of mills of the soke of Newark, and from the burgesses of the same town, and from the yearly produce ninety-six baskets of grain according to the measure of Lincoln, half of wheat and half of rye. This I have done for the peace and safety of Holy Church, for king Henry, and for the souls of myself, of Roger my uncle, bishop of Salisbury, and of others. Moreover, all things from the living and the faithful dead, which we wish to be faithfully dealt with and guarded, we have committed to the hand of Robert the almoner of York to be ordered and dispensed. And we forbid our successors, under perpetual anathema, to destroy or diminish this our ordination. I have written this with my own hand. Moreover, I have added to the aforesaid rents four pounds of the tithe of money which belongs to me from Newark; in order that part of it, namely sixty shillings may remain secure to the use of the priest who shall have the cure of the same church, and that the other part may be applied for the needs of the said sick persons. Further, I have granted to the lepers themselves in perpetuity a tenth of victuals, both in food and in drink, except wine, as long as I am at Newark, and on feast days, and at another time. These things I have written and appointed at the dedication of the church of Saint Leonard which I founded for the use of the same sick persons. At Newark. (1123-1135.)

Text : MS—Libellus 26. Pd—W. Dickinson. The History and Antiquities of the Town of Newark, p. 388.

Var. R. : ¹ Libellus omits futuris.

Note : The transcript which is printed here was made by a fourteenth century scribe. The original document would have been particularly interesting since the bishop says that he subscribed it with his own hand. The notification as it stands is by no means carefully drafted. The bishop begins and ends in the first person singular, while in the middle he writes in the first person plural. In line 28 he writes, ipsis leprosis, although the lepers have not been mentioned before. In line 31 et alio tempore is so indefinite that Dickinson ventured to insert non before alio without, however, any indication that he was adding to the text.

The date lies between the accession of bishop Alexander in 1123 and the death of Henry I in 1135.

An account of the hospital, which was dedicated to Saint Leonard, will be found in Dickinson, op. cit., pp. 171–5. The episcopal registers at Lincoln record appointments to the mastership until that of the Reverend William Frederick John Kaye, M.A., on 14 August, 1851.

SOUTH SCARLE

ADD. CHART.

921. Notification by the canons of Lincoln that the claim of Nicholas the priest, their fellow-canon, against bishop Alexander has been brought to an end in their presence. Whereas Nicholas claimed two bovates which, as he said, belonged to the church of [South] Scarle, which is his prebend, the bishop, at the canons' request, and on the evidence of lawful witnesses, has granted these two bovates to the church of Scarle and Nicholas and his successors in prebendam in frank service, for a render of five shillings a year. Text : MS—Orig. dij/86/3/15. Pd—E.H.R. xxxv, 212-4.

Var. R. : ¹ the lost word is no doubt some form of the name Lincoln. There are three holes in the charter. ² Probably for Malebanc. He appears as Ricardus Mallebeench, magister omnium pauperum militum et fratrum templi Salamonis, A.D. 1155-61, in the Kirkstead Cartulary (B.M., Vesp. MS xviii, f. 134).

Note : Dr Salter shews (E.H.R. xxxv, 212-13) that the date of this text is 1147. The witnesses are divided in four groups by a symbol which is but rarely found in the Lincoln charters. The first group contains twenty-seven of the canons of Lincoln. The second consists of four abbots of Cistercian houses, and other ecclesiastics. The third contains six knights, the last four of whom are known to have been in the service of the bishops of Lincoln. The fourth group consists of witnesses who lived in or near Searle. The name of the fourth abbey is probably Leicester, which was founded in 1143, and of which the first abbot was named Richard; for two canons of his appear among the witnesses. Apart from its general interest, the list of witnesses is noteworthy for the name of Ailred of Rievaulx, 'Adeldredus abbas de Reresbi', who was elected abbot of Rievaulx before the close of the year. 'If it is asked,' says Dr Salter, 'what could be the occasion when so many canons and Cistercian abbots were brought together, it may be suggested that it was the foundation of the Cistercian abbey of Vaudey in Lincolnshire on 23 May 1147.'

ADD. CHART.

923. Notification by John archdeacon of Exeter : Since the prebend of the church of Bampton which was Godfrey de Luci's before his promotion to the bishopric of Winchester was afterwards assigned to me, I confirm the grant which the said Godfrey, while he had the prebend, made to his nephew Robert de Luci of a certain prebend in the church of Bampton, that prebend, namely, which Nicholas of Bampton held. (After 22 October, 1189.)

Texts : MS—R1918. Dij/73/2/18a (a 14 cent. copy).

Var. R. : ¹sic.

Note : The prebend would appear to be in the church of Exeter, since the church of Bampton was appropriated to the dean and chapter of Exeter. The charter is of special interest as shewing that Eustace of Falconberg, a royal justice under John, treasurer of England under Henry III, and finally bishop of London, had been a clerk in the service of Godfrey de Luci, a prominent member of the English administration under Henry II.

Notes: Crakehall, Dyham, and Campden are frequent witnesses of bishop Grosseteste's acts. The first is a canon throughout the episcopate. Dyham and Campden are first described as canons in November, 1240 (L.R.S. xi, 55, 57). Grosseteste died in 1253.

Claydon was, until 1851, in the parish of Cropredy, and the bishop of Lincoln's land there in 1086 was presumably included under Cropredy. In 1208-9 Ralf son of Robert, one of the bishop's knights, held one knight's fee in "Claendon' et Wardington'" (Book of Fees i, 39).

EYNESHAM

ADD. CHART.

939. Notification by the abbot and convent of Eynsham : Adeelm the dean and the chapter of Lincoln have granted to the abbot and convent the procession of the archdeaconry of Oxford at the solemnity of Pentecost, as, by the liberality of bishops Alexander and Robert, they are known to have obtained it, with the proviso that the church of Lincoln, in whose name they acquired it, should receive yearly two parts of the offering of silver, and whatever is given in gold, in garments of silk, curtains, and embroidered vestments ; and that the remaining third of the offering of silver with the benefit of the other offerings should be reserved to the abbot and convent. And in order that the memory of the proviso may not be forgotten, the dean and chapter have confirmed the gift by their charter, and the abbot and convent have confirmed it with their seal. Texts : MS—Orig. dij'69/3/1. Pd—Salter, Eynsham Cartulary ii, 159.

Note : The charter of dean Adelelmus is printed by Salter, Eynsham Cartulary
 i, 38. Bishop Robert's grant, referred to in the text, which also is printed by him (ibid., pp. 38-9), is by him dated 1163-4 on the ground that Martin treasurer of Lincoln, one of the witnesses, at that time became treasurer, and that Adelelmus the dean is believed to have died in 1164. The present text is later than the bishop's and the dean's charters. The three charters were seemingly issued within a short space of time ; and the conclusion is that the present text should be dated 1163-

Notes : East and West Shutford are hamlets in the parish of Swalecliffe, in the hundred of Banbury. The bishop's land in Shutford was probably included in the fifty hides which he held in 1086 in Banbury (Domesday Book i, 155, col. 2). In 1208-9 Maud de Busseie held one and a half knights' fees in 'Setteford' of the bishopric of Lincoln (Book of Fees i, 39).

The grant was made in the time of bishop Robert, December, 1148—December, 1166. William Basset appears as a witness in 1120 (Eynsham Cartulary i, 91). Fulk Basset held a knight's fee of the honour of Wallingford in 1166 (Red Book i, 310). Fulk Basset and Thomas Basset (see the next text) appear together as witnesses in 1188 (Eynsham Cartulary i, 72).

Notes : No reason can be suggested for the presence of this and the three following texts at Lincoln. Even in the thirteenth century, as the endorsement on no. 957 shews, they were considered superfluous.

Startforth formed part of the fee of the constable of Richmond. Roald succeeded his father Alan as constable before 1201 ; but he seems to have lost his office at the time of the Barons' War, and not to have regained it. It will be observed that he does not witness as constable. Roger of Gatenby was, no doubt, the Roger son of Stephen who with Avelina his wife were parties to a fine of land in Startforth in 1202 (Yorkshire Fines (Surtees Soc.), p. 46). Roger was dead at the time of the text. Picot de Lascelles' father was under age in 1182 (Pipe Roll Soc., xxxi, p. 42). Theobald his brother occurs in 1221. William is spoken of in 1228 as having been at one time parson of Stanwick (Stainwegges) (Archbishop Gray's Register (Surtees Soc.), p. 25). A date in the late 12th century is indicated for this series of charters. I am indebted to Mr. Charles Clay for most of these dates.

*The part of the REGISTRUM ANTIQUISSIMUM which follows, namely folios 186–211d., containing nos. 920–1007, is of a very miscellaneous character. The original hand, circa 1225, does not appear. There are many notes by Q (i.e. John of Schalby), in his characteristic handwriting, in view of his redaction of the cartulary. Most of the charters have been copied by Q's clerks, and there are entries by hands of the fourteenth, fifteenth and sixteenth centuries. In the following pages the date of each entry in the REGISTRUM ANTIQUISSIMUM is indicated. For particulars about Q, see volume i, pp. xxviii–xxxvii; and for a table of contents, see ibid., pp. xlix–liii.*

962. De iurisdiccione vacante sede (marg., Q). Composition, dated at Lambeth, 22 May, 1261, between Boniface archbishop of Canterbury and Robert de Mariscis the dean and the chapter of Lincoln concerning the rights of jurisdiction when the see became vacant by the death of Henry Lexington, 8 August, 1258 (ff. 186–7). The document which was entered in the Black Book also, ff. 15–16d., is printed in full, with critical notes, in Linc. Cath. Statutes i, 311–15. Cp. ibid. i, 117; ii, pp. lxii, lxix.

Text: MS—A (by Q2).

Folio 187d.

963. Concord made between the Dean and Chapter of the one part and the Mayor and Community of the city of Lincoln of the other part, in a long-standing dispute concerning the rights and liberties of the same mother church of Lincoln with respect to four of its servants who ceremonially bear the wand; and further with respect to a certain tenant of the Chancellor and Chapter's of certain land which was Walter son of Martin's in the parish of Saint Peter in Eastgate, and one bovate in the territory of Lincoln : At length, after divers suits at law, by the influence of the Author of love, and the mediation of many sons of peace and lovers of justice, on the Saturday in Easter week, 7 April, 1263, all litigation and quarrel between the parties was amicably settled in this form :

That the four servants of the church shall be exempt from all jurisdiction and observance of the watches of the city, except in time of war or siege. Also that they shall never be taken or forced to make oath upon assizes. Also that they shall be exempt from all tallages and contributions, unless they be merchants, or chance to be dealing in goods of wool and cloth ; in which case they shall be bound to answer to the city with the rest of their neighbours pro rata for their stock, and to accept its charges. Also that their wives, if they are brewers, shall be exempt from the payment which is commonly called ' Aletol ' so long as they sell according to the law of the city and the assize ; and likewise from the payment which is called ' Backestrigeld '. But if the same wives shall chance to sell contrary to the law of the city and the assize, they shall be subject to the laws of the city and to the correction of the bailiffs. Also that the four servants shall be exempt from all causes and pleas unless the business is concerned with possessions and lands, or with bloodshed, or wounding, or other serious transgressions, which pertain to the dignity of the Crown. Further, it is agreed, and is pleasing to both sides, that their tenant of the aforesaid lands, if he belong to the merchants, or his wife, if she be a brewer, shall be subject at all times, to the established laws and customs of the City ; but if they shall in no wise employ themselves in wares, they shall be bound to answer to the City with regard to these things only when other citizens of the same condition are called to make contributions. And in the City market they shall do and receive justice concerning those who complain about them ; but if for any reason there is need to proceed to distraint, the bailiffs of the City shall not levy distress in the aforesaid lands or use force ; [but] at the suit of the bailiffs the lord the Chancellor of Lincoln if he is present, or the Dean or his commissary if the Chancellor is absent, shall make such distraint, and take it, and shall restore it the same day to the bailiff. That if the Dean or his commissary or the Chancellor shall refuse to make such distraint, or shall delay beyond the day of the suit, the bailiffs may enter the lands, and make their distresses. To which, in order that the sons might sweetly rest in their mother's arms, it was added with careful deliberation that in all causes of citizens belonging to the ecclesiastical court and the jurisdiction of the Chapter two citizens shall come on behalf of the City and be assessors in the suit, and see that justice is done to both parties; and that in all causes of ministers and servants of the mother church belonging to the secular court and the jurisdiction of the City, two canons or other clerks on behalf of the Chapter shall come likewise and be assessors.

Now in token of the consummation of peace and fellowship, the lord the Treasurer of Lincoln and the Mayor of the city openly gave each other kisses of peace. Assisting in this peace and composition, and affording mutual encouragement, there were Nicholas Wadingham, the Chancellor, [and others]. In testimony whereof the seals of the Chapter and of the Community of the city have been affixed alternately to this indented writing.

Note : For the date see the following charter. This and the following charter are documents of unusual interest as illustrating the solidarity of a village community at the middle of the thirteenth century. Wellow was a village, not a borough, and although many village communities may have been acting in a similar manner in this period, there are very few documents which show them doing so. The fact that the communitas of Wellow possessed a seal is very remarkable. For this note I am indebted to Professor F. M. Stenton.

Notes: Richard Fitz-Neal, the King's treasurer, held the deanery of Lincoln in 1184, and perhaps earlier. In 1189 he became bishop of London. The present text cannot be earlier than October 1186, when Hugh was consecrated bishop of Lincoln. William of Ely who appears here as a witness was his kinsman and succeeded him as treasurer. The present deanery stands on the same site as in Richard's time. The grammar of the charter is somewhat irregular.

Philip the canon was evidently only lately dead. Perhaps he is the 'Philippus de Constanciis' whose name appears in the list of canons in the great Bible in the chapter library, circa 1184 (Linc. Cath. Statutes iii, 793). The 'Philippus canonicus et sacerdos', whose name occurs in the list of obits in the same Bible, circa 1185, under 18th September, may be the same person (ibid., ii, p. ccxli), but the obit may be that of 'Filippus (de Derbi)', whose name occurs in a list of canons, circa 1145 (ibid., iii, 790).

Note: From the end of 1270 until the beginning of 1272 the bishop's movements are imperfectly known. He was abroad for the greater part of this time, and after his return he first appears at Rochester on 26 March, 1272, apparently making his way from the coast towards his diocese. It would therefore seem that the "Hufefeld" where he was staying on 17 March must have been situated somewhere in eastern Kent. The only place in this region bearing such a name seems to be Howfield (now a farm and wood) in Chartham, a little more than two miles south-west of Canterbury. The early forms of this name include examples of Hufefeld and Hufefeld, and the situation agrees with the probable course of the bishop's itinerary (Professor F. M. Stenton).

Notes: The grantor was William (le Gros) (died 1179) count of Aumale, who was created earl of York in 1138. His father, the original donor, was Stephen count of Aumale; and Stephen's father and mother, for whose souls the gifts were originally made, were Odo ex-count of Champagne and Adelaide the daughter of Arlette of Falaise and half-sister of William I. The charter may be compared with a grant of William le Gros to Meaux abbey, which has six of the same witnesses (Farrer, Early Yorkshire Charters iii, no. 1079). Dr Farrer assigns that document to 1149-50, and the present text is probably about the same date. The collegiate church of Bytham existed before the time of count Odo, and it may well have been an Old English foundation; and, if so, parallel to numerous little collegiate foundations in the West Midlands. Probably Paxton is an example of such a church (above p. 150). In 1096-1100, Arnulf son of Roger de Muntgomery, comes Anglie, who at that time held Drew de Beurero's Domesday honour, 'in accordance with his promise,' gave the church of Bytham (Biham) with the tithes and all that the canons held there, and the church of Barrow (Barewua) to the abbey of St Mary of La Sauve Majeure, for the purchase of woollen shirts (Calendar of Documents—France, p. 446); and the gift was confirmed by king William II (ibid; Davis, Regesta, no. 483). In 1115, Stephen count of Aumale, who had succeeded to the same honour, gave half the church of Barowâ to the abbey of St Martin at Auchy (now Aumale) (Mon. vii, 1103). There is no mention here of Bytham, but, in 1156, Robert bishop of Lincoln confirmed to the monks of Aumale the gifts of count Stephen and William his son, including the churches of Barrow and Bytham (ibid.). In 1157, when Henry II confirmed the gifts which had been made to Thornton abbey by William le Gros, the founder, in 1139, there is no mention of these two churches (Carte Antiquae X, no. 21); but in Richard I's confirmation in favour of the same house, 3 July, 1190, the church of Barrow and the town of Holywell (Helewell) are included (Mon. vi, 326-7.) Sometime before 1218 the church of Bytham had been given to Thornton, for the abbey was then presenting to its portions (L.R.S. iii, 118). The church of Bytham in the thirteenth century was still collegiate, consisting of three portions or prebends. One of the portions was called 'the portion of the church of Biham which is in Helewell' (L.R.S., xx, 6). Another was 'the portion of the church of Byham which is called Byhamel' (ibid., xx, 37). In the rolls of institutions at Lincoln, Byhamel always means Little Bytham. The remaining portion, which has no particular designation, was seemingly the first portion, and was associated with Castle Bytham. Its holder is sometimes termed the rector, and he is named first among the portionaries when they are mentioned together. In 1245-6, the portion of Holywell was united with this portion by the institution to the former of Thomas Crispin, the portionary of the first portion, 'cum exiles sint eedem portiones' (L.R.S., xi, 85); but soon afterwards the two portions were separated again (ibid., xx, p. 6).

On 5 August, 1268, Thornton abbey assigned the advowsons of the churches of Castle Bytham, Holywell, and Little Bytham to the bishop (see no. 1024, below); who, on 19 December, 1273, granted the church of Castle Bytham to the dean and chapter and, on 16 September, 1273, appropriated it to them for the augmentation of the Common (nos. 1025-6, below). On 30 June, 1277, he appropriated the church of Holywell also to the Common by annexing it to the church of Castle Bytham (no. 1027, below). On 19 May, 1280, the bishop ordained a vicarage in the churches of Castle Bytham and Holywell (above, vol. i, pp. 81-3). After the third portion, 'the portion of the church of Byham which is named Byhamel,' had been transferred by Thornton abbey to the bishop, it became the rectory of Little Bytham, and remained in the bishop's patronage.

The following is a list of the portionaries, the references being to the volumes of the L.R.S. unless otherwise specified. An asterisk indicates that a portionary is stated to have succeeded the person whose name precedes his own.

Var. R. : ¹ 7 seems to have been omitted; cp. no. 1020, l. 28. ² Perhaps iure has been omitted, cp. no. 1020, below, l. 29.

Note: This charter is later than the pope's mandate, 27 October, 1225, and during Walter Crispin's incumbency of the portion of Byhamel which ended in 1226-7 (L.R.S., ix, 152), when Richard Mauclerk was instituted. Walter's portion here is identified as Byhamel, because Thomas Crispin held the portion of Castle Bytham and W. de Sancto Germano that of Holywell.

Note: Henry de Colvill was a justice in 1252. Richard de Edenham was vicar of Witham on the Hill from 1237-8 to 1261-2 (L.R.S., xi, 20; xx, 11). Crispin was rector of the portion of Castle Bytham in 1245-6, when he was instituted to the portion of Holywell (ibid., xi, 85). Circa 1252 is the most probable date.

Text : MS—Orig. Dij/88/1/13.

Var. R. : ¹ some word indicating submission seems to be intended.

Note : It would seem that the bishop had offered to appropriate the church as soon as it became vacant, to the abbey of St Sever, on condition that the abbey submitted to the ordination by him of a vicarage. In the letters the abbey accepts the condition and, in order that it may obtain the benefit of appropriation without delay, asks the bishop to favour the immediate resignation of the rector. Bishop Gravesend's roll of institutions shews that the benefice was vacant in 1269-70 by the resignation of Matthew, and that a vicarage was ordained (L.R.S. xx, 3).

1099. Note by Q that the chapel of Saint Mary Magdalene, which was once an altar within the [cathedral] church, was afterwards erected outside the church in the churchyard. The collation to one of the vicars, like the collation of the other altars, belongs to the dean and chapter. The rector has ordinary jurisdiction, and he is, with his people, exempt from subjection to the archdeacons of Lincoln. The dean and chapter shall visit when they see fit.

The other altars, which are within the church, are dealt with below, under the title concerning altars and chantries.

Notes : John of Schalby, in the Martilogium, states that when Remigius built his cathedral church the parishioners of Saint Mary Magdalene heard divine service in that church, and received the sacraments and sacramentals there at the hands of a priest of that church (folio 1). This was done in the western part of the cathedral church (folio 7) : and it continued until bishop Sutton's day. When that bishop built a chapel in honour of Saint Mary Magdalene in the precinct (atrio) of the cathedral church, he appointed that the parishioners should hear divine service and receive the sacraments and sacramentals in the chapel : but he thought good that infants should be baptized in the font of the cathedral church, and parishioners be buried in its cemetery (ibid.). See Linc. Cath. Statutes ii, lxxii.

Unfortunately, the section about altars and chantries was not added to the Registrum Antiquissimum. Perhaps its place was taken by the Liber Cantuariarum. See ibid., p. lxx.
